Cookies Policy

What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that are stored by the browser (for example, Internet Explorer, Chrome or Safari) on your computer or mobile phone. They allow websites to store things like user preferences. You can think of cookies as providing a "memory" for the website, so that it can recognise you when you come back and respond appropriately.

How does LSE Ltd Trading as Clubland and Laughter UK website use cookies?

Our website may generate the following types of cookie:

- Site performance cookies
- Analytics cookies
- Registration cookies
- Other third party cookies

Site Performance Cookies

This type of cookie allows us to remember your preferences for searches, result ordering, which artists you have looked at and how you used the website during your visit so you don't have to repeat tasks when you return to the site at a later date.

Analytics Cookies

We use analytics cookies to estimate the number of unique visitors, to improve our website and to detect the most searched for words in search engines that lead to a webpage. These cookies are not used to target you with online marketing. We use these cookies to learn how our website is performing and make relevant improvements to improve your browsing experience.

We also use Google Analytics and other third-party analytics providers to help measure how users interact with our website content. For more information on Google Analytics, visit Google's information page

Registration Cookies

When you register, login or checkout on our website, we store crucial, encrypted information relating to your account in our cookie so we can keep you signed in during your visit. This allows you to make updates to your account information and submit enquiries for artists. When you logout, cookies stored on your computer are expired and removed. However, we still may be able to identify which pages you have seen when you have visited.

Other Third Party Cookies

We use social network plugins throughout the site and these can add tracking cookies when you browse our site. Your consent is required because some third-party social plug-in tracking cookies are used for things like behavioural advertising, analytics, and/or market research.

How do I turn cookies off?

If you would like to stop your browser accepting cookies from LSE Ltd Trading as Clubland and Laughter UK, follow the instructions in the links below. However, by doing this you will be unable to make enquiries about artists for your event and other areas of the site that rely on cookies will not work.

All modern browsers allow you to change your cookie settings. You can usually find these settings in the Options or Preferences menu of your browser. To understand these settings, the following links may be helpful, or you can use the Help option in your browser for more details.
